

The Bow Valley Call

Devoted to the Up-Building of Gleichen and the Development of the District Generally

Year VI, No. 14

GLEICHEN, ALBERTA, THURSDAY, JUNE 19, 1913

Per Year $1.50

A FAREWELL ENTERTAINMENT

On Wednesday evening of last week Messrs. R. N. Nottter and W. J. McCammon were entertained by the business people of Gleichen and their friends at a smoker in the dining room of the Palace Hotel, when Mr. A. H. Spurr in a neat address presented each of the guests with a handsome "Furnished Club Bag" as a token of the high esteem in which they were held by Gleichenites and expressed the sincere regret to learn of their intended departure from here.

Mr. Nottter in accepting the gift said everybody knew he was no orator, yet he would like to convey to his friends how much he appreciated the kindness bestowed upon him. During the five years he had been in Gleichen in charge of the Cosgrave & Nottter store he had tried to deal fair with everyone and he took it that now he was returning to his home in Toronto the people had in their gift acknowledged that he accomplished at least to some degree his aim. He was more than pleased to hear the many kind remarks his friends had made for his future welfare and now deeply regretted to leave so many kind and generous friends. As a place to do business in he knew no better and no matter where he might go he would ever be a Gleichen booster and his greatest delight would be to meet someone from here.

Mr. McCammon said he always thought he had some good friends around Gleichen but from the handsome gift and the kind words spoken he had tonight learned he had more than he even suspected. When as a "drummer" he visited Gleichen he noticed that there were more teams tied to the hitching posts than any town he visited and that while at other places he could get his order between trains here he sometimes had to wait a couple of days and then often get the merchants in the middle of the night. Observing this he took the first opportunity to get into business in Gleichen, and after three years of business with McCammon & Ramsay he could honestly say he was not in the least disappointed—Gleichen was still the best town he knew of. If he had any advice to give it would be to join together in business as solidly as you do socially and then he would predict that this would soon rank as one of the largest towns in Alberta as well as the most solid. He was leaving that night for Edmonton but not for want of confidence in this town but to embark in a different line of business. He was sorry to leave but if any of his friends ever reached as far north as Edmonton he would show them how glad he would be to meet them.

Toastmaster Hughes called upon everyone present, but all were shaded by the oratory of Messrs. Beach and Wyndham and we regret our long-hand reporter was unable to keep up and report all verbatim.

A most enjoyable evening was brought to a close by singing "Auld Lang Sange", after which Mr. McCammon was seen off on the train. Mr. Nottter expects to leave tonight for the east.

Friday evening fully 300 young people met by invitation of Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Telford at their farm west of Cluny to attend a "Barn Dance". This name may sound rather strange or odd to some readers in the Old World and to even some in America, but to the people of the Last Best West it means in a word—prosperity. In this case it

1,000 HEAD OF HORSES SHIPPED FROM GLEICHEN

$130,000.00 Worth of Horse Flesh Goes East

Tuesday there was made from Gleichen at the Stobart stock yards what is claimed by our oldest horsemen to be one of the biggest shipment of horses ever made in Alberta comprising one thousand head of horses.

The shipment was made by James Ryan consisting of all the horses on the Two Bar ranch, north of town, and sold to Hugh Townsend, of Winnipeg, who was taking them to his ranch at Milestone, Saskatchewan.

It is said that the entire shipment sold at an average price of $130 per head, the full payment realized being a little over $130,000.00. The shipment made up a full trainload of 45 cars.

One of our local horsemen described the shipment as one of the grandest sights he ever saw and beat any circus parade he ever witnessed. He said he had seen four and five hundred horses together various times and they appeared a great number, but he had never fully realized what a beautiful sight one thousand made until he saw these fine animals coming into the stock yards, stretching out a couple of miles along the road, and when the whole bunch were rounded up he thought the only way he could describe the sight was by saying that it seemed the stockman's dream had come true.

The Two Bar ranch has long been noted in Western Canada for the fine class of horses raised on it and locally it is regretted to see it depleted of all the horses, only Mexicans and mules being left on it. At present it is not made public just how the owner of the ranch intends to make use of his property, rumor has it that it will be turned into a farm and another is that it will be used exclusively for raising horses for the British army.

means a man and his wife came west more than a quarter of a century ago with only strong hearts and a willingness to work as well as confidence in the possibilities of the Gleichen district. They succeeded and on Friday night their friends joined them in celebrating their success by dancing until sunrise on the floor of one of the largest barns erected on a Western farm; and, next we all, in congratulating Mr. and Mrs. Telford and their family of boys and girls. Today it may be said Mr. Telford is rated one of the wealthiest men in these parts, having made a fortune in gradually working into ranching and finally into farming, in the meantime being shrewd enough to invest in large tracts of land.

W. H. Buchanan, M. P. Boosts Gleichen Customs Office

W. H. Buchanan, M. P. for this constituency, has been doing his best to have a Customs Office established at Gleichen, and it is pleasing to quote from the official reports published by the Dominion Government at Ottawa under the "House of Commons Debates" the following: "Mr. Buchanan: I would like to impress upon the Government the importance of two other points in my constituency, the town of Gleichen and the town of Taber, both of which I understand have made requests to the Government to be made outposts of customs, Gleichen an outpost of Calgary and Taber an outpost of Lethbridge. They are in well settled districts where there is a considerable trade and quite a business in the line of customs."

"Mr. Rodgers: I am sorry that the Minister of Customs is not in his place at the moment. But, so far as Gleichen and Taber are concerned, I know these places, and they are thriving and growing towns, and will certainly merit, at all events consideration of the claims that my hon. friend has put forward."

Manager O. G. Calquhoun came in from the Circle Farm Monday morning and made a flying trip to Calgary returning the same afternoon, having in the meantime disposed of 3000 bushels of flax to the Alberta Pacific Elevator Co. at $1.25 per bushel. It is reported, which he had stored at Cluny.

Mr. Calquhoun when seen admitted he had sold 3000 bushels of flax that day, but said he still had another 3000 bushels to haul in to Cluny. Questioned as to the price he had received he said he did not care to quote prices but was no adverse to stating the number of bushels of flax shipped from the Circle, and referred to the 4,000 bushels shipped a few weeks ago, which would make up fully 10,000 bushels. This of course does not include the seed flax kept over for this year's use at the farm.

The Women's Auxillary of St. Andrews church intend to hold a garden party in aid of the funds of the Church in the grounds of Mrs. Jowett's residence, on the Reserve, on Friday evening, June 27th. Admission to grounds 25 cents. A sale of needlework, refreshments, ice cream, fruit and candies will be held. Music, footraces and other attractions. Plenty of fresh air, come and get some, no extra charge.

J. Black, who has been on the Bank of Commerce staff for the past three years, left Monday morning for Provost, Sask., to occupy a similar position. Mr. Black has taken a very active part in all social affairs and as a token of the esteem in which he was held was entertained last week at a smoker one evening, a dance another and a picnic another day, while a number of friends were at the station to say farewell.

The body of George R. Ansell was found last Friday by a couple of men camped just above the Bow river bridge. They were hunting for wood for their fire and discovered the remains in some backwater. They at once notified Corpl. Irvine, who with Coroner Rose visited the scene and ordered the body buried at Gleichen. It will be remembered that this is the man who was swept over S. A. L. Co.'s dam on Sunday, May 4th, in sight of forty men who were powerless to assist him. He floated down stream almost 16 miles and was badly decomposed. It was found his skull had been cracked, which undoubtedly was done when he came over the falls. He was recognized by the clothing he wore and his watch stopped at 5:15 o'clock. Corpl. Irvine took charge of his belongings and has notified his friends in England and the public administrators.

The number of society events the past week would indicate that the people of this district are prospering, despite the reported money stringency.

He ran down the stairs again still searching and still assuring himself there was no possibility of the second assailant Joan had spoken of being anywhere about. It occurred to him that perhaps Joan had been the second assailant herself—that perhaps Joan had deliberately led Dora into some trap.

When he reached the doorway again Dora was still clinging in terror to Joan, who was still trying her best to soothe and comfort her. Hearing him coming, Joan looked at Thorold and he said roughly to her:

There is no one there. But there is, cried Joan. I tell you there were two men and only one ran away, and I heard a door close. Wait here and watch while we find a policeman.

There is no one there and all the doors are locked, said Thorold in the same rough tone. One man I saw escape—the other, whoever it was, must have escaped since.

But impossible, cried Joan, and then something she saw in his eyes fixed burning on her, struck her into silence. Oh, she said softly, terrified by his look of which she could not imagine the meaning.

Miss Rose, Thorold said, let me take your arm—I will take you home.

But Dora shook her head faintly and clung to Joan, who looked at Thorold in haughty displeasure. She thought him rude in the extreme. She wondered again what made his eyes burn so. A good deal frightened now, she made a protecting gesture with her arms about Dora as if to shield her also from Thorold's fierce and vivid glance.

Thorold saw the gesture and it angered him still more.

Oh, that will do, he said. I think we understand each other—and I will see Miss Rose home.

But Dora, half fainting still, clung to Joan, and over the shrinking girl's head, Joan's eyes blazed at Thorold. I do not understand you, she said with difficulty, you are cowardly. Why do you not help us?

But if Joan's eyes were on fire with her anger, Thorold's glance met hers undimmed, and with an expression so wild and strange that she was as much bewildered as afraid.

Do you know, he said. I believe I have seen your photograph once.

Oh, you are surely mad, she exclaimed with fresh terror.

Not I, not I, he answered. Shall I tell you where?—in a house on the downs.

With a low cry, as if he had struck her, Joan shrank back, and Thorold putting his strong arm about the almost unconscious Dora lifted her away. One last look he gave the trembling Joan—one last look more vivid, more intense, more charged even than before with strange and hidden meanings, and then hurried Dora away, carrying her indeed, for her feet did no more than touch the ground, to his car. He placed her in it, and a moment later they were off and Joan was left standing alone on the pavement.

Oh, what a man, she muttered, echoing unconsciously both the escaping convict and the poet. Why he must be mad, she said trembling. Mad—how he looked at me.

Thorold, who had not once glanced back at Joan standing solitary on the pavement, asked Dora one or two questions, but the girl was in no state to answer any one. He drove straight to her aunt's, where the elder Miss Rose felt into such a state of agitation at seeing Dora's condition that Thorold could do nothing but pacify her by promising to fetch a doctor in his motor-car at once. The doctor reported that Miss Dora was suffering from shock and must not be disturbed on any account by any questioning, and Thorold having waited till late in the hope of hearing something more, had performed to go away unsatisfied. He went by Wilton Mayne's rooms but they seemed still unoccupied, and though Thorold hung about till past midnight he saw nothing of his friend, nor could he imagine what had become of him.

That night he did not go to bed at all, but sat grim and wakeful in his armchair, thinking of the strange meeting of the day, remembering his dead young brother and the days of their childhood together, remembering Joan's clear, dark eyes and how unflinchingly she had endured his menacing and gloomy gaze, resolutely forcing his mind to dwell upon the future and the task that lay before him.

When it was light he bathed and changed his clothing, and then setting off in his car, arrived at Mayne's chambers at a time when the poet was generally sound asleep in bed. And it was in extremely scanty attire that Mayne opened the door to admit him.

Why, Thorold, he said, you are an early visitor. I was in the soundest sleep imaginable when I heard your car puffing and coughing under my window. What a noise the thing makes!—after all, Thorold, much as you may like your car, you must admit that between a horse and a motor-car there is all the difference there always is between God's work and man's.

Never mind that, said Thorold impatiently. I want to tell you something.

Well, just wait till I dress—sit down, will you? said Mayne motioning Thorold to a seat in the sitting-room as he retired into his bed chamber.

He had not shown much curiosity at Thorold's early visit, and seemed indeed, in one of those quiet, abstracted moods, somewhat resembling the state of a man recovering from the effect of a strong drug, which his intimates would smilingly whisper to one another was a sign that the recent creative energy was so intense that the poem it had produced had exhausted all his vitality. So well was this understood that when he presently came back into the room fully dressed, Thorold said impatiently:

Have you been writing again?

Yes, answered Mayne languidly and threw him a blotted, scrawled-over sheet of paper which was headed in a straggling irregular hand: To Youth Laughing; and which was the first draft of that poem which afterwards attained such wide recognition.

I thought as much, grumbled Thorold.

It was Dora put it into my hand, said Mayne slowly, hearing her laugh; all day it was running in my head to try to put her laughter, the laughter of the youth of the world, down upon paper, and there it is, he concluded, his voice at the end almost inaudible.

And were you out last night? Thorold asked in the same impatient way, or were you just sitting here busy with this thing?

Mayne looked vacant and rather troubled. He put his hand to his head with a troubled worried gesture.

Upon my soul, Thorold, he muttered, I can't remember—yet, let me see—we were choosing the furniture—yes, we were choosing the furniture—and I said good-bye to Dora and Miss Rose—yes, that poem was in my head all the time—upon my soul, Thorold, he said with a pettish and uneasy gesture. I don't know—I can't remember—what are you bothering me for?

Only this, said Thorold grimly, that while you were busy with this thing—he shook the manuscript rather contemptuously in the air, for he could never rid himself of an impression that writing poetry was not real work—that it was all very well for an amusement or a hobby, but not worthy to be a man's sole work in the world—possibly while you were writing it in this very room, Miss Rose was attacked on the landing outside, had her watch stolen and for all I know was nearly murdered.

Good God what do you mean? cried Wilton Mayne, springing to his feet, all his languor fled on the instant.

What I say, Thorold retorted, what else should I mean? And there was with her at the time—the woman—that woman—his breast heaved with so profound an emotion that for the moment he was unable to speak.

Frank's murderer, he said, and suddenly covered his face with his right hand.

Thorold, said Mayne again in very agitated tones, tell me plainly—Dora attacked—tell me plainly for heaven's sake, man.

In short fierce sentences, Thorold told the events of the preceding night. He told how he had seen Monday, the discharged valet, running away, and he put forward the theory that Joan had enticed Dora there to be attacked and robbed by Monday. The poet flamed up in fiery indignation when he understood what had happened, and was all for rushing off then and there to see how Dora was. But Thorold reminded him of the time—it was still not eight o'clock—and asserted positively that Miss Dora had received no hurt, and finally Mayne sat down again.

But it's most extraordinary, he said most extraordinarily.

It is, agreed Thorold, and it is at least suggestive that at the moment this attack is made on Miss Dora by Monday, this Durand woman should turn up again.

Ah, you suspect—said Mayne slowly, and when he glanced up and saw how Thorold looked, he lifted his hand as if to shield himself from a blow.

Ah, what do you mean to do? he whispered in a voice of fear.

Clear accounts with her, said Thorold slowly.

How you do hate her, Mayne murmured in the same low tone.

Yes—yes, exclaimed Thorold, but he looked startled as though it were a shock to him to hear Mayne's words.

Yes, I do hate her, he said, putting his hand to his heart. Strange—it is like a fire there—the way I hate her.

But, said Mayne, very gravely, my dear Thorold—as your oldest friend let me—your know, the law.

Oh, the law, retorted Thorold bitterly. As I see it, it is a duty laid upon me to see that Frank's death is avenged.

Ah, vengeance, repeated Mayne in a sad and musing tone, there is no such thing as vengeance—there is only fresh wrong—can you not imagine how the dead smile when they hear us talk of vengeance?

Couldn't do it
Look here, begin the man, as he entered a butcher's shop and displayed two black-and-blue eyes, you have fresh beef for sale? I have, replied the butcher.

And fresh beef is good for black eyes?
It is.

Very well. I have the eyes and you have the beef. Do you think you can sell me a pound or so without asking me how I got decorated?

I will do my best.
The butcher then cut off and weighed the meat, and received the money for it without another glance at the customer. A sudden wave of curiosity swept over him, and he laid the money down and said: Here, I'll make you a present of the meat. Now, tell me about the fight.

Get out, you ornithorhynchus! The man departed meekly. Who's that? Inquired a friend of the speaker. An ornithorhynchus. How's that? Well, Webster defines him as a beast with a bill.

Land of the Free
An American paper relates that the political boss of a small western town drove his buckboard at top speed down the main street on the morning of the election.

Hey, Joimie! he yelled to his son, get down in the Fourth Ward, quick! There's people down there votin' as they blame please!

Had His Revenge
He was a surly and quarrelsome old farmer, and the only person of any importance who had managed to avoid clashing with him was the mild-mannered vicar.

But even this forbearing gentleman lost his temper when the farmer impudently turned his horses loose in the churchyard and refused to take them out again.

High words ensued, and the vicar so far forgot himself as to call the farmer a broken-down old mule.

Off went the farmer on the instant and crashed noisily into the village lawyer's office.

The vicar has just called me a broken-down old mule, he bawled. What am I to do?

Now the lawyer had once received a severe rebuff from the farmer, and he had waited for years for a chance to repay it. Here was his opportunity, and he seized it with both hands.

Don't come to me about that, he said, coolly. I can't patch you up. I am no veterinary surgeon.

Teacher—Now who can write me a sentence containing the word gruesome?

Tommy went up to the blackboard, and this is what he wrote—

Dad did not shave for a week and grew some whiskers.

Pa, was Job a doctor? Not that I know of. Then why do people have so much to say about the patients of Job?

CLEARED AWAY
Proper Food Put the Trouble Away

Our own troubles always seem more severe than any others. But when a man is unable to eat even a light breakfast, for years, without severe distress, he has trouble enough.

It is small wonder he likes to tell of food which cleared away the troubles.

"I am glad of the opportunity to tell of the good Grape-Nuts has done for me," writes an Eastern man. "For many years I was unable to eat even a light breakfast without great suffering."

"After eating I would suddenly be seized with an attack of colic and vomiting. This would be followed by headache and misery; that would sometimes last a week or more, leaving me so weak I could hardly sit up or walk."

"Since I began to eat Grape-Nuts I have been free from the old troubles. I usually eat Grape-Nuts one or more times a day, taking it at the beginning of the meal. Now I can eat almost anything I want without trouble."

"When I began to use Grape-Nuts I was way under my usual weight, now I weigh 80 pounds more than I ever weighed in my life, and I am glad to speak of the food that has worked the change."

Great Generosity

She sighed. I saw the loveliest lace curtains today, she murmured. I did want them so badly. She sighed again. But I knew you wished to economize, dear, she concluded, so I didn't get them. And yet a third time she sighed.

Then he spoke. That's too bad, my dear! he said generously. Anything which adds to your happiness and brings gladness to your eyes; anything which brightens your domestic cares and glides the lowering clouds; anything which borders with sweet flowers the thorny paths of duty and appeals to your aesthetic nature, you are welcome to, my angel—if it does not cost more than fifty cents.

BANISH PIMPLES AND ERUPTIONS

In the Spring Most People Need a Tonic Medicine.

One of the surest signs that the blood is out of order is the pimples, unsightly eruptions and eczema that come frequently with the change from winter to spring. These prove that the long indoor life of winter has had its effect upon the blood, and that a tonic medicine is needed to put it right.

Indeed there are few people who do not need a tonic at this season. Bad blood does not merely show itself in disfiguring eruptions. To this same condition is due attacks of rheumatism and lumbago; the sharp stabbing pains of sciatica and neuralgia; poor appetite and a desire to avoid exertion. You cannot cure these troubles by the use of purgative medicines—you need a tonic, and a tonic only, and among all medicines there is none can equal Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for their tonic, life-giving, nerve-restoring powers. Every dose of this medicine makes new, rich blood which drives out impurities, stimulates every organ and brings a feeling of new health and energy to weak, tired, ailing men, women and children.

If you are out of sorts give this medicine a trial and see how quickly it will restore the appetite, revive drooping spirits, and fill your veins with new, health-giving blood.

You can get the pills from any medicine dealer or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

It Paid Better
While travelling through the West a man lost a valuable dog, and immediately proceeded to the office of the Hustler's Review in the town where he was stopping. Entering abruptly, he said to the editor: I've lost a dog. I'd like to have you insert this ad. for me:

Seventy-five dollars reward for the return of a French bulldog answering the name of Darwin. Last seen on Turn's Road.

We're just going to press, said the editor, but we'll manage to hold the edition for your ad.

After returning to the hotel, the owner of the dog decided it might be best to add to his advertisement: No questions asked: He returned to the office and placed the entire deserted save for a red-haired youth who sat gazing intently out of the window.

Where is everybody? he asked. Gone to hunt the dawg, replied the lad, without removing his gaze from the distant fields.

She Wanted Comfort
An old country woman, compelled to sit in a suffocating smoking compartment in a crowded excursion train, gazed open-mouthed through the window at a lady on the platform who was giving the porter exhaustive instructions regarding the storage of her bicycle.

See that you find the best place in the van, porter, and fix it very securely, and don't let anyone play with the bell, and close the windows so that nobody can steal it, and cover up the handle bars and make sure that the train doesn't shake it as it goes over the points.

The porter promised slavish obedience, pocketed his tip and turned to go away.

One moment, young fellow, cried the old woman, leaning out of the window and catching his arm, I want to get out of here. It ain't half cozy enough. Here's tuppence; now show me the way to the bicycle van.

Where Jake Drew the Line

Jake Tannenbaum owns a theatre in Mobile, where the Race question is very acute. Furthermore, he exercises great care in his scrutiny of the bills any company wishes to present in his house. One morning he received from a celebrated Shakespearean actor the list of plays to be put on during a run of seven days.

I see here, Romeo and Juliet, said Jake, running his finger down the list, and I will stand for that. But I shrink when I think of that fellow playing Romeo. And here's Hamlet. No man living can play Hamlet as he should be played. And here is Othello!

At this point Mr. Tannenbaum leaped out of his chair and hung on the ambient atmosphere a long and lingering groan.

It is too much! he cried in anguish. I am no fanatic. I am not a crazy man on the Race question. But I'm a son of a gun if I'm going to have in my theatre any black man handing out a lot of mushy talk to a white woman.

A Running Account
Briefer, the solicitor, was angry. It was easy to see that from the vicious way he was filling in a bill of cost. Snp the tailor, had actually had the impudence to send his bill in twice, and now his little son had come to demand the money.

I am too busy to attend to such a small matter now, he said. Tell your father I'm not going to run away.

Away went the youth with the message, but very soon he returned.

Father says he must have the money please, he lisped in childish innocence.

Tut, tut! Didn't you tell him I was not going to run away?

Yes, sir. Please, sir. I told him that all right but he told me to tell you, sir, that he was!

As Man to Man
Dick, I never thought my little boy would tell his mother a falsehood, exclaimed the mother in the well-known more-in-sorrow-than-in-anger kind of voice.

'Wasn't really a story, muttered Dick, with downcast countenance. I didn't run in the road, but only in the gutter.

That makes it worse. Half a story is worse than a whole one, as I've told you often. And now I feel it to be my duty to punish you severely.

This duty, he it said, the mother performed most conscientiously. When father returned home, therefore, in the evening he found Dick looking very red-eyed and disconsolate.

Well, my poor little man, he asked, what is the matter?

Nothing, sniffed Dick.

But something must be wrong, sonny. Tell me.

Oh well, if you want to know, said Dick, with a scowl. I've just been having an awful row with your wife.

Seeing Is Believing
The weather was wet. Business had been bad. Hence Farmer Giles, never amiable, was even more irascible than usual.

As he stepped down from the cart on his return home from the market, he noticed a lantern-light moving about near his kitchen premises, and proceeded at once to make investigations.

To his surprise he discovered a yokel, lantern in hand, talking to his niece.

What's your business here? demanded Farmer Giles peremptorily.

I be come a courtin' master. Came a-what?

A-courtin', sir. I be a courtin' Mary.

It's a lie. You've come here thieving. You know you have. No man goes courtin' with a lantern. At any rate, I never did.

No, sir, replied the yokel quietly. I shouldn't think so, judgin' by the misuses!

Henry Augustus was learning to dress himself. He was not so big as the name sounds.

Mother, looking on, said: Why, my son, you have your shoes on the wrong feet!

Well, screamed Henry Augustus, they're the only feet I have to put 'em on!

Holloway's Corn Cure takes the corn out by the roots. Try it and prove it.

A Pleasant Prospect
I want you to put up some wallpaper I have bought, said the country clergyman, meeting the local man-of-all-work. When can you do it?

Well, sir, he exclaimed, you see, I'm rather busy just now. I hung Mrs. S.—yesterday; I'm hanging your churchwarden today; but if it's convenient I'll drop round and hang your reverence on Wednesday.

Ask for Minard's and take no other

He—A woman is always illogical. She—How do you make that out? He—She can always remember her birthday, but never her age.

She (suddenly)—Did I hear something fall? He (timidly)—I dropped a remark.

Lapses of Novelists

Novellists are in a hurry at times, but only a few of their readers are critical. In a detective story of many years ago the villain carried up to his room a casket containing 50,000 sovereigns and handed it to accomplices on a ladder.

This is eclipsed in a novel by Mr. Guy Boothby. Here the villain stipulates that 100,000 pounds in hard cash shall be brought to him secretly at the place appointed. A gentleman with a weakness for arithmetic states this amount of gold would weigh a large part of a ton.

GLEICHEN---PROGRESSIVE AND PROSPEROUS ALBERTA CENTRE

Thus the Winnipeg Free Press Heads a Boost for Gleichen

The Winnipeg Free Press last week gave Gleichen a half page boost accompanied by four very good cuts. One represents rounding up cattle on the ranges near Gleichen, the view being taken below Hammer Hill. Another cut shows the Gleichen stock yard filled with beef steers for shipment to the Yukon by Chris Bartsch.

The third is a scene of harvest field of operations at Mrs. A. E. Williams and a fourth a portion of the Big Cut on the Southern Alberta Co.'s irrigation canal south of town.

The writer of the article was here last December and consequently the article lacks many interesting features, but is well worthy of perusal as appended:

The Albertan town of Gleichen, situated on the main line of the C. P. R., about fifty-five miles east of Calgary, adjoins the Blackfoot Indian reserve, and enjoys the advantages of a good mixed farming territory. This town practically started with the advent of the Canadian Pacific railway some years ago and has been growing steadily ever since and now has an estimated population of over 1000. Both the townspeople and farmers are mainly Canadians, Americans, and old country people, and are now typical of the experienced western Canadian settler.

The land is composed of a medium to heavy soil and is well adapted for raising successfully all kinds of cereals. As this district is within the Canadian Pacific Irrigation area, land naturally varies in price. Non-irrigable land varies from $15 per acre upwards, and irrigable land from $30 per acre upwards.

Soil Fertility
The fertility of the soil is seen in the excellent quality and quantity of the crops raised therefrom. Last year's harvest statistics amply confirm this. The amount of wheat marketed from the 1912 crop was 216,094 bushels; of oats 63,600 bushels; of barley 15,400 bushels and of flax 6,300 bu. These figures were made up to December last and represented roughly about 25 per cent of the then marketable crop. The quality of the grain is well shown in the averages obtained per acre. Wheat averaged about 30 bushels 75 bus. and barley 40 bushels.

Another favorable indication of the extensive farming operations carried on in the Gleichen district is revealed by the large amount of agricultural machinery sold during the last season, totalling in value approximately, $175,000.

This district is also well adapted for cattle, and a large amount of stock is being raised. That this is a lucrative and extensive local industry is plainly demonstrated by the fact of 7000 cattle marketed the last season aggregating in value $525,000. Sheep, too, are being raised in fair quantities, there being some 13,000 marketed last year, valued at $227,500.

Extensive poultry raising operations are being carried on by the farmers, for which there is a good and ready market. That this profitable branch of agriculture is revealed by the productive quality and quantity, which is improving every year. Dairying is also another important feature of Gleichen, there being a high class creamery located in the town.

Fuel and Water Supply
The question of an efficient fuel supply is also a very satisfactory feature. There are two coal mines located on the Indian reserve and situated 6 and 14 miles respectively from the town. A good supply of coal is obtained from these mines, prices varying from $5 per ton up.

The water supply is derived from wells producing a very abundant supply, the daily capacity being 7,000 cubic feet. The cost to the average householder is $1.50 per month.

Last year's municipal improvements which were effected involved an outlay of $5,000. The roads in the town comprise in extent about two and a half miles. There are extensive sidewalks and from half to three-quarters of a mile of sewers have been laid through the town. Gleichen is well supplied with telephones, possessing the town, rural and long distance systems.

The material growth of the town is shown by the present assessment on its rateable property, which total $379,810. This assessment total is under the single tax basis, which now stands at 30 mills. The present debenture debt stands at $14,000.

The educational needs of Gleichen are well met by a good school building, which has seating accommodation for 160 pupils. The spacious school building was erected between three and four years ago at a cost of $14,000. Under the capable training of three qualified teachers the education of some 100 pupils is well assured.

Commercial Status
The commercial aspect of Gleichen is well reflected in the large number of stores and other business places, numbering over fifty. They comprise the usual list of business requisite to the needs of a healthy and thriving agricultural community, and are conducted by energetic men experienced in western Canadian methods. Among these lines are included two real estate agents, two branch banks, the Canadian Bank of Commerce and the Royal Bank of Canada, three grain elevators with a total storage capacity of 90,000 bushels, two doctors, a lawyer, a dentist, two veterinary surgeons, printer, four general stores, three hardware stores, two drug stores, two furniture stores, a butcher shop gentlemen's furnishing store, two tailors, two boot makers, a baker, two paint shops, three blacksmiths, an automobile garage, three lumber yards, four implement shops, three barber shops, two pool rooms, three livery barns, three restaurants, a laundry, a jewelry store, two hotels the Palace and the Gleichen; also the local newspaper, the "Bow Valley Call."

Provision for fire protection is met by a well organized volunteer fire brigade, which possesses two chemical engines, hydrants, hose and other fire-fighting apparatus.

Religious and Social Life
On its religious side Gleichen possesses four churches, Presbyterian, Methodist, Church of England and Roman Catholic. The social and recreative aspect is duly represented by three fraternal societies, Masons, Foresters, and Odd Fellows. There is also a good Agricultural association, baseball and football clubs, skating and curling club, an ice and roller rink and an opera house for entertainments of various kinds.

In its varied aspects Gleichen gives evidence of being a good western agricultural town, both the latter and its tributary territory containing the right sort of settlers who are individually and collectively building up our great western country. At the present time there exists a good opening in this town for a flour mill.

WINNIPEG DRUGGIST ENDORSES
SANOL REMEDIES

SANOL AND SANOL'S ANTI-DIABETES EFFECT WONDERFUL CURES

Below is given a copy of a letter from a prominent Winnipeg Druggist. This is but typical of the many we receive, advising of the great demand for SANOL and SANOL'S ANTI-DIABETES and the many cures these remedies effect.

The Sanol Manufacturing Co.,
Winnipeg.

Dear Sirs—

In regard to the sale of SANOL and SANOL'S ANTI-DIABETES, I might say I have been handling the goods for about three months. I was obliged to put in SANOL'S ANTI-DIABETES to supply one of my customers, who now is completely cured and whom, I believe, has sent a testimonial to your office. Another customer ordered SANOL, and I was obliged to stock it. This gentleman was so well satisfied that he has sent bottles to his friends. Up to this time I had never really taken much interest in the preparations, but when customer after customer would come in and tell us about what SANOL had done for them, I came to the conclusion it would be worth my while getting behind SANOL and recommending it to my customers. This I have done, and I have heard nothing but words of praise for SANOL, and recommending it to my customers. On the Honeymoon

(The start)—She—The guard says this tunnel is two miles long.

He—But hang it, the lights are all turned on.

(The Return)—Here is this lovely tunnel again.

He—Well, why the deuce don't they light the carriages, then?

A Hint

How would you like to be hugged by a bear? asked the timid young man.

I think I'd like it, replied the sweet young thing. Which side of the stock market are you on?

I was coming to town in a tram-car this morning, said Jinks, and the conductor came in and glared at me as if I hadn't paid my fare. And what did you do? Oh, I just glared back at him as if I had.

Saved the Situation

The gas bill of a portable theatre had not been paid, and a man appeared on the scene and announced his intention of cutting off the supply if the bill was not paid on the spot. The doorkeeper remonstrated with him, pointing out that the manager was on the stage at the time, and could not possibly leave it for an hour. The gas man might call then.

No, said the gas man. I'm going to cut it off now.

Held hard, said the doorkeeper. I will go and tell the manager. Disguising himself in a huge red cloak and a great felt hat, he walked on to the stage.

Behold, me lord, said he, the man stands at the castle gate to be remunerated for the glimmers, and, it not seen at once, darkness threatens us.

In an instant the manager knew. Go, he thundered. I follow thee.

Minard's Liniment used by Physicians

You used to want to hold my hand before we were married, she complained. I'd like to now, said he easily, but it would keep you from your housework, my dear.

Would you really put yourself out for my sake? Indeed, indeed I would! Then do it, please, she murmured, with eyes half closed. I'm awfully, awfully tired!

Baron Hirsch, the financier, was dining at the same table as a German prince who made no secret of his antipathy towards Jews. He ended up a description of a tour he had taken in Turkey by saying pointedly: Two of the customs of that country impressed me as excellent. All Jews and dogs that are caught are at once killed.

How lucky you and I don't live there, remarked the financier, quietly.

Customer—Hey, waiter! Waiter—Yes, sir. Customer—Kindly tell the leader of the orchestra to play something sad and low while I dine. I want to see if it won't have a softening influence on this steak.

It is easy enough to look pleasant when the spring comes along with a rush!

But the fellow worth while is one who can smile when he slips and sits down in the slush.

Miller's Worm Powders are complete in themselves. They not only drive worms from the system, but repair the damage that worms cause and so invigorate the constitution that it speedily recovers from the disorders of the digestion that are the result of the work of these parasitic intruders. They do their work thoroughly and strength and soundness follow their use.

Eugene—This bookcase is an inch out of plumb. We must have that fixed.

Imogene—Oh, dear! And I've heard those plumb lines are so expensive.

Her photograph that a girl thinks looks just like her is one her own mother wouldn't be able to recognize.

It Might Have Been Otherwise

Poor and sad, a tired-looking individual entered the shanty where the workmen were eating their dinners. He was carrying a red tin can.

Hey, comrades, he sighed, wearily holding out a hand by way of salutation. Look at this tin of powder I picked up this morning. I've a mind to blow myself up with it, and so end my troubles here and now.

Cut that sort of talk and clear out, ordered the foreman.

But the man addressed paid no attention. He cast one comprehensive glance around the shanty, then walked deliberately to the store, opened the door, and thrust the can inside.

A shriek of wild dismay followed this action and a moment later the place was empty.

Ten minutes after, when the run-aways returned, they found the can reposing peacefully on the fire. The tired-looking individual had gone. So had their dinners and other of their possessions.

Nova Scotia Mother Tells How They Cured Her Aches and Pains, and Made Her a Well Woman Again.

Ecum Secum Bridge, Halifax Co., N.S. (Special)—From Vancouver to Halifax come daily reports of the splendid work Dodd's Kidney Pills are doing for the suffering women of Canada, and this little place can show a splendid cure of its own. Mrs. Oranthe Pace, the mother of a large family was a sufferer from those aches and pains only women know. Today she is a strong, healthy woman. Dodd's Kidney Pills did it.

"I had a pain in my left side and down through my hips," Mrs. Pace states. "I had Leadache all the time. My heart was weak, and at times a pain found it added to my fears. Some days I was hardly able to walk.

"I read of a number of cures of cases like mine by Dodd's Kidney Pills, and sent for three boxes. Today I am a well woman, and can do as much work as ever I could.

Dodd's Kidney Pills cured Mrs. Pace because her troubles came from diseased kidneys. Dodd's Kidney Pills always cure diseased kidneys, and as ninety per cent. of women's troubles come from kidney trouble, Dodd's Kidney Pills have come to be known as suffering woman's best friend.

A Stiff Proposition

A canvasser who called at a certain house in South London at the time of the last municipal elections experienced great difficulty in making the inmates of the abode aware of his presence.

For a long while he knocked vainly, but loudly, on the door; then at last it was opened cautiously by a woman who peered out at him suspiciously through the narrow aperture.

What do you want? she asked.

Politely the canvasser explained that he had called to solicit the vote of this most gracious lady's husband on behalf of Mr. So-and-so.

Then get out! the good dame exclaimed, as she slammed the door in the man's face. It's no good your comin's ere. Me an' my husband do not tyke no interest in nuffink.

The controversy which arose some time ago with regard to the skull of Cromwell recalls the incident of the traveling showman, who on entering a country town, displayed amongst other things, a skull, which he claimed to be that of Cromwell. That cannot be, said one of his audience, as it is well known that Cromwell had a big head. Oh, came the retort, but this is his skull when he was a boy.

That Misleading Announcement

Boy wanted!

The notice was displayed boldly in the window; and Ben Simmons, after gazing at it thoughtfully for a minute or two, mustered his courage and stepped into the shop.

What kind of a boy is it you want? he asked the manager.

Oh, replied that gentleman, a decent sort of lad—one who is quick and willing, one who won't laze about with a cigarette between his lips and whistle and one—

The youth thrust his hands into his pockets and eyed the manager contemptuously.

Garn! he remarked. You don't want a boy at all. You want a girl!

A girl forced by her parents into a disagreeable match with an old man, whom she detested, when the clergyman came to that part of the service where the bride is asked if she consents to take the bridegroom for her husband, said, with great simplicity—Oh, dear, no, sir! But you are the first person who has asked my opinion about the matter.

Man (on dock)—What are you rowing with that trunk in the bow of the boat for, Pat?

Pat—Shure, an' if it was in the stern, wouldn't I be rowing uphill all the time? An' this is the way I'm rowing downhill all the time!

Professor—You say they contested the will of the deceased?

Student—Yes, sir, and the court held that he was suffering from hallucinations.

Professor—On what grounds?

Student—It appears that he left three-fourths of his property to his mother-in-law.

Lady (to weeping youngster)—What's the matter? Youngster—My brother has lost his hat. Lady—Well, you mustn't let that worry you so much. Youngster—But I was wearing it!

Two Can Think Occasionally

It was a literary dinner. Things had been going rather slow in the conversation line, when someone turned the talk to the various curious methods of working employed by literary geniuses.

Several tales had gone the round and evoked feeble smiles, when an elderly man seated at the top of the table, cited the case of a well-known writer who was wont to arouse his spouse in the wee sma' hours and exclaim:

Jessie, get up; I've thought of a good word. Whereupon Jessie would obediently arise, crawl out of bed, and make a note of the word. A little later, as likely as not, a new inspiration would seize him and his better half would again be aroused from her slumbers with:

Get up, wife; I've thought of a better word.

The company listened to this anecdote with rapt interest, when suddenly a witty girl, who until then had been bored to death by the evening's proceedings, remarked:

Well, if he'd been my husband, I know what I should have done; I should have replied: My dear, get up yourself; I've thought of a bad word!

Wise Precaution

Now, Harry, go to Smith the grocer's and get a pound of the best treacle, said his mother, and she handed the young hopeful a couple of good-sized jugs.

When the boy had gone the vicar's wife said—

You didn't tell him to get anything in the other jug. Is he going to leave it at the shop?

No, ma'am; he's going to bring it back here again.

But why send two jugs to get a pound of treacle?

Well, you see, it's this way. If he has a jug in each hand, he can't go dipping his fingers into the treacle as he comes along.

Fishy

A gentleman, after lunching off two soles, approached the cashier's desk and said:

I have three fish to pay for.

The waiter (who had attended on him) was passing at the time, and remarked:

No, two, sir.

The gentleman replied:

Excuse me. I have three to pay for—two soles, and one smelt.

An old negro, taken ill, called in a physician of his own race. There being no signs of improvement, he at last asked for a white doctor. The doctor came, felt the old man's pulse and examined his tongue. Did you other doctor take your temperature? he asked. I don't know, sir, replied the negro. I ain't missed anything but my watch so far.

Judge Greenhow, of the Leeds and Wakefield County Court, who has just completed thirty-two years on the bench, has many pleasant reminiscences of Lord Russell, who used to stay with him in his cottage at Esher in Surrey, where, as usual with the future Lord Chief Justice, he ruled everyone with a rod of iron. On one occasion, being in haste to get to his whist, he said to Mr. Greenhow's maid: Here, Mary, take away the meat; your master has already had far more than enough for him. The maid cleared the table speedily, and the guests sat down to a long night of whist.

Strangest Lake in the World

Near Lorrach, in the Black Forest, is the strangest lake in the world. It is called the Elchener See, and is perfectly dry for ten to thirteen years at a time, after which period subterranean springs refill the lake without any previous warning, flooding and destroying any crops that have been planted. The soil in the bed of the lake is very productive, but the farmers and peasants never know in what year their work will be useless and their young crops drowned. A few weeks ago the Elchener See, after having been dry for the last ten years, began refilling with water, which in the deepest part is now 15 feet, the average depth being 12 feet. The waters of the lake generally remain a year or so, and then gradually disappear into the earth, leaving a rich soil behind.

So you think you would make a satisfactory valet for an old human wreck like myself, do you? said the old soldier to the applicant for the position of body servant. You know I have a glass eye, a wax arm, and a wooden leg that need to be looked after, not to mention my false teeth.

Oh, that's all right, colonel, said the applicant, cheerfully. I worked five years in the assembling department of the motor-car works, and there isn't a machine on the market that I can't take apart and put together again with my eyes shut.

New minister?

No, it was burned down.

The hotel patron had waited fully an hour for a very slow waiter to serve two soles.

Now, rather, he said to the waiter, can you bring me some tomato salad?

Yes, sir, said the waiter.

And, continued the customer, while you are away you might send me a postal card now and then.

Minor Evidence

It was a timber law case, in which Tim Healy was counsel for the defence. In the course of the case a youthful witness was put up as an expert on the plaintiff's side. Tim got up to cross-examine.

What age are you?

Twenty-one years?

How long have you been in the timber trade?

Two years.

Tim sat down, saying: A regular babe in the wood, my lord, which discounted the evidence of the youthful expert.

I say, most annoying. Met Binks just now, and asked him to lend me a tenner. He refused. Then I met Banks and Jaggs, and asked them. They both refused. Don't you think they're rotters? Yee-s. Er—I'm a rotter, too.

That officer, having recovered, read the incriminating remark and retorted effectively by starting his notes with: To-day the captain was sober.

Political Candidate—Well, did you discover anything in Stump's past life that we can use against him?

Detective—Not a thing. All he ever did before he came here was to sell awnings.

Neuralgic Conditions of the Nerves

In this age of nervous disorders neuralgia is fearfully common. The first thought is of neuralgia in the head or splitting headache, but neuralgia may affect any part of the body in which there are sensitive nerves.

The teeth are often blamed and extracted in error, when the cause of the trouble is in the impoverished condition of the blood and the starved nervous system.

While neuralgia pains are usually sharp and shooting, and consequently difficult to locate, the seat of trouble is usually sore and tender under pressure.

Neuralgia is pain, and as such is the symptom of a disease—nervous exhaustion. The nerves must be restored before cure can possibly be effected.

Powerful drugs are to be avoided, because of their injurious effect in further weakening the nervous system. The Nerve Food cures by building up the feeble, wasted nerve cells, and for this reason is of lasting benefit.

In many cases neuralgia is easily curable by the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. The patient is thin and bloodless and needs tonic treatment to form new, rich blood.

The application of cloths wrung from hot water will afford relief from the suffering, and the regular use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food for a few weeks will completely overcome the neuralgic condition.

Neuralgia is pain, and as such is the symptom of a disease—nervous exhaustion. The nerves must be restored before cure can possibly be effected.

PAINS OF HELL
EXPLAINED TO US

Misconceptions of Bible's
Teaching—Beauty and Truth Hidden.

Paterson, N.J. —Pastor Russell preached this afternoon in the Opera House. His topic was "Beyond the Grave." We report his discourse to Bible Students on the text: "The sorrows of death compassed me, and the pains of hell held upon me."—Psalm 116:3.

Opening his address, the Pastor apologized for the selection of such a text. He would much prefer to talk along the lines of Christian character-building and the necessity of growing in grace, knowledge and love, and thus becoming more and more copies of God's dear Son. His apology was that his text, a sample of many other Bible statements, is so grievously misunderstood as to stand in the way of Christian progress. In conjunction with other Scriptures, it was woven into terrible theories during the Dark Ages. Those theories became imbedded in the various creeds of the time, and so obstructed the channels of thought that the grace, truth and beauty of the Bible were hidden. Many noble hearts, he claimed, are famishing for lack of the refreshment of God's truth, by reason of the fossilized errors which block the way.

The Scriptures foretell conditions exactly as they are to-day. They declare that there shall be "a famine in the land—not a famine of bread, nor a thirst for water, but of hearing the Word of the Lord." (Amos 8:11.) Again the Scriptures declare, "My people are destroyed for lack of knowledge." (Hosea 4:6.) It is certainly true that there are as many honest-hearted, conscientious, well-meaning people in the world to-day as have ever lived—perhaps more. Yet these well-meaning people are perishing, famishing, for lack of spiritual nourishment. True, there are some who claim to be well-nourished and to find in the popular pulpits of the land all the spiritual refreshment and strength they need.

But these are as nothing compared with the millions who give a different testimony. I am glad that those who attend worship regularly, and are well-nourished and well-satisfied, have what they desire, at the mouth of a hundred thousand preachers. I am reaching out after "the lost sheep of the house of Israel," through the secular press. They tell me that I am reaching millions of the unchurched every week. My readers are the discontented, the unsatisfied, perishing for lack of knowledge, hungering and thirsting after the right ways of God—the real teachings of the Bible.

My heart goes out to those as the heart of Jesus went out to the same class, nearly nineteen centuries ago. We read, "He had compassion on the multitude, for He beheld that they were like sheep having no shepherd." I am seeking, as an under-shepherd, to bring these hungering, thirsting, perishing sheep to the true Shepherd and Bishop of souls—the Lord Jesus.

I am seeking to remove from their minds the prejudice and various obstructions which have hindered the flow of God's grace and truth to their hearts. I am seeking in the Master's name to present to them the Bread of Life, the Water of Life. I am not seeking to build up another denomination, but give the word Sheol? Was it their intention to confuse the people? What is the motive? We wish that some of these great men would explain.

Results show a certain measure of success already attained. I am receiving more than five thousand letters a week from hungry sheep and others, who, so far as denominational Christian systems are concerned, are homeless. Everywhere—all over the world—these instead of forming a new denomination, are associating themselves with Bible classes for the study of God's Word. I am simply doing all in my power to help them out of darkness into God's marvelous light—out of misunderstanding of the Bible into a right appreciation of it; out of ignorance into a knowledge of God; out of ignorance of the Savior and His work to a true knowledge of Him and His glorious Kingdom, which is yet to bless all the families of the earth.

It may be interesting to know that while I am advertised by the newspaper syndicate as the Pastor of the Brooklyn Tabernacle congregation of independent Christians, and of a similar congregation of London Tabernacle and of the congregation of Washington Temple, I have additionally, been chosen Pastor of more than one hundred and fifty of those classes of Bible Students, to which I have already referred. They elected me Pastor without any suggestion or solicitation on my part. In so doing, I understand them to signify that they recognize the Lord Jesus as the great Divinely appointed Shepherd of the true sheep, and that they desire me to serve them in any way that I can as an under-shepherd.

Through the columns of The Watch Tower, I visit these classes regularly twice a month, doing a pastoral work to the best of my ability—leading them to the Fountain of Grace and Truth and breaking forth from the Living Bread, the Word of God. Additionally, they have my weekly sermon and a weekly treatise on the International Sunday School Lessons.

One would suppose that all of the one hundred thousand ministers and all their flocks would rejoice to know that the unchurched, straying sheep are being reached with a Message of God's Love and Mercy which is appealing to their hearts and working a transformation in their lives. Many do rejoice, but alas! a few are jealous, as were some of the scribes and Pharisees of Jesus' day. Of these we read, "They were grieved that He taught the people"—the people whom they could not reach, the sheep that were straying and famishing.

As those jealous scribes and Pharisees antagonized Jesus and the Apostles, because their hearts were out of harmony with the Good Tidings, so it is to-day with some. Unable to uphold the doctrines which have driven away so many of the intelligent of their flocks, famished for Truth, a few ministers are angry with us. True to the Master's prophecy, these seek to say all manner of evil falsely against us, for His sake, for the Truth's sake. Yet, in spite of their unchristian course, the poor straying sheep are hearing and recognizing the Voice Divine, are coming back to the Word of God, are being sanctified by the Word of Truth.

If this were the only text mistranslated and misunderstood, the ordinary reader would doubtless pass it by, saying, "I do not understand it. Probably it is a figure of speech." But this text is merely a combination of mistranslations, all of which are connected with an eternal torment system of doctrines invented during the Dark Ages. It is this combined system which has such power over men's minds. This power of error, this power of fear, is turning intelligent minds away from the Bible. Hence it is our duty to break down the false doctrines, and to clear away the obstacles which hinder the flow of Truth to the minds and hearts of the people of God—the straying sheep. Nor are these straying sheep all, or chiefly the ignorant. They include many of the ablest minds and truest hearts in the world—minds and hearts too true and too logical to believe palpable falsehoods, or to profess what they do not believe.

The Psalmist is merely telling of his severe illness, from which by the grace of God he recovered. He would have us understand that it was not merely a slight ailment. He described his emotions in the language of our text, saying, "the sorrows of death compassed me about"; that is to say, the sadness associated with the thought that he was about to die, about to leave his friends. In the poetic form of the Hebrew language, he repeated this thought, namely: "The pains of hell held upon me." In our modern language this would mean the pains of death, or the pains of the tomb. They were pains that indicated the approach of dissolution. Nothing in this text has the slightest reference to anything in the future life.

Our Baptist friends, in their revised translation of the Bible, have chosen for such passages as this the expression, "the underworld," instead of the word "hell." Yet even here there is danger of the average reader not catching the true thought. Far simpler and far less liable to be misunderstood, would it have been, had the translators said, "The pains of the tomb." The Revised Version of the English Bible reads, "The pains of Sheol."

Every learned minister knows that the Hebrew word Sheol really means the grave, the pit, the state of death. Why do they hesitate to tell the people the whole truth on this subject? Why do they translate it part of the time "the grave" and at other times "the underworld"? Why do they use the translation, "the grave" in one place, and "the pit" in another, and then refuse to translate the word at all in the third instance, but give the word Sheol? Was it their intention to confuse the people? What is the motive? We wish that some of these great men would explain.

We would like to have our ministerial brethren state their reasons for pursuing a course of hiding the truth on the subject of hell. Only because they neglect to give the reasons, do we feel at liberty to suggest them. It seems to me that these ministers are of two classes, and that their reasons are therefore slightly different. All of them seem to agree that it would be dangerous to tell the people that God is really a God of Love, and that the doctrine of an eternity of torture is entirely unscriptural, finding no foundation whatever in the writings of the Apostles.

They fear to tell the people that these doctrines were built up during the Dark Ages by the very men who manifested so little of the Spirit of God and so little knowledge of God's will respecting His people that they burned one another at the stake. They fear to tell the people that during the Dark Ages our blinded forefathers took the parables and dark sayings of Jesus as literal statements, quite contrary to the Master's evident intention. These they supplemented with certain crude misconceptions of the symbolism of The Revelation. From the combinations they made of obscure doctrines, blasphemous in the extreme, which never produced saints, but which led men astray into thinking that they were copying God into the devilry which they accomplished one toward another.

The fear now seems to be lest the public should once perceive that the creeds of Christendom, while containing much good, are cankered, wormy and vitiated by those doctrines of demons. Why should they fear to tell the people the truth? Perhaps it is because the religion of our day is built so largely upon man-worship, system-worship, creed-worship and not upon the Bible. Perhaps they fear that if the creeds were thus discredited it would mean that the ministers of those creeds would be similarly discredited. Perhaps they fear that the people would never again have confidence in their teachings, and that thus all the various party walls of Christendom, which for so long a time have divided the sheep would fall. We cannot definitely know of their reasons, because they do not tell us, we can only surmise.

Others, very worldly-wise, have become Higher Critics, and do not believe in the Bible at all. They are really agnostics. But they do not desire to advertise their lack of faith, lest it should detract from their esteem among men. They prefer to pose as believers, and to hope that the time will come when all the wealthy and intelligent will become unbelievers also. Then they will declare, "We have not been believers for many years, but we kept the matter secret, fearing to be misunderstood as opponents of the best interests of society."

All the while, this latter class constitutes the greatest menace in the world to law and order, and are the best agents Satan has in making void the Word of God and destroying faith therein. Robert Ingersoll's methods of antagonizing the Bible were far less successful than the methods of modern Higher Critics and Evolutionists.

All who oppose the telling to the public of the plain truth respecting hell seem to have one common ground of objection. They say, "With all the fear of hell that has been preached for centuries, see how wicked the world is and how little human life is worth! See how every law of God and man for the protection of life and purity and property is endangered! Note that if it were not for our telegraphs, telephones and immense police forces of to-day, nobody would be safe, so much more wicked does the world appear to have become within the last fifty years! If the fear of eternal torment and of purgatory were lifted from the minds of mankind, would it not make the dangers tenfold greater than they are now? Would it not speedily be necessary to double our police force, if the masses lost their belief in a place of eternal torture?"

This is lame reasoning, it seems to us. It confesses in one breath, in spite of all the false teachings of centuries, wickedness has been growing. Would it not be wise to inquire to what extent the false doctrines, the misinterpretations and mistranslations of the Bible, have been responsible for the increase in wickedness? Are men wiser than God? Is it possible for man to invent some monstrous, unthinkable delusion which will have a greater power with men, than the plain, simple Message of God's Love?

But if we were sure that by blaspheming God's holy name and by playing upon the ignorance and superstition of the masses we could make the wicked preserve peace, would it be wise to do so? Could God's blessing be expected upon such a course? Would it not be wiser for us, as the people of God, to have faith in Him and to trust that, while we faithfully present the Truth, Divine Providence will oversee and overrule its effect, and will influence for good?

Experience proves that theirs is not the proper thought. When we go to the records of the various prisons, penitentiaries, etc., we find that nearly all the worst criminals have been taught the doctrine of eternal torment. Many of them confess full faith in it. On the other hand, many infidels—once violent opponents of God and of the Bible and Christianity—after hearing of the Love of God, have thoroughly melted, and with tears in their eyes have become loyal soldiers of the cross.

We heard of an interesting case recently. A colored man in prison for crime, somehow came in touch there with my sermons, and then with my books on Bible study. He became a thorough Bible student, and a master at handling the Word of God. His fellow-prisoners came gladly to hear this colored man preach the Divine Plan of the Ages from God's Word, while they cared not at all to attend the chapel services addressed by the ordinary chaplain.

In the "wonderful words of life," started by the Master's lips, and handed down through His Apostles, there is a sweetness, beauty and power that cannot be associated with the doctrines of demons, which became attached to the Message during the Dark Ages. The Message of life everlasting, through the Redeemer and by obedience to Him, has its offset, or alternative, in death everlasting to those who refuse to obey after full enlightenment. Eternal life is the gift of God, tendered to all the willing and obedient, through the Messiah. All rebels will be destroyed in the Second Death. (Acts 3:23.) Their punishment will be everlasting torment, but "everlasting destruction"—a destruction from which they will never be recovered, will never be resurrected.

Milhaven's Big Man Passes.

The largest man in Kingston district passed away recently in the person of Samuel Milhaven, who died at his home in Milhaven. He was eighty-six years of age and weighed 370 pounds. The remains were placed in a specially made coffin. He had lived in Milhaven all his life and was a very active man.

Moderation In Praise.

The young man was about to be married.

"Praise your wife's grace and beauty constantly," advised one friend. "But don't overdo it," counseled another. "She may conclude that she has thrown herself away on you and want to go on the stage."

Bad Investment.

"How about that girl who married the duke?"

"She has entered suit." "For divorce or consent?" "No; against the company that guaranteed his title."

Prehistoric Art.

Mural paintings, attributed to bushmen in the caves of Polesa, South Africa, are to be preserved according to recent measures adopted by the Department of Justice.

Human Strength.

The strength of a woman compared with that of a man is 75 to 100.

DAMES AND DAUGHTERS.

Mrs. Magdalena Herrman, who recently died in New York, left a fund of $12,000 for the support of two pet dogs.

Mrs. E. H. Harriman has deeded the Sodus Point property of her husband to Bishop Walker of the Episcopal diocese of western New York, to be a vacation resort for clergymen.

Miss Ellen Emerson of Concord, Mass., a granddaughter of Ralph Waldo Emerson, has been traveling through the country in behalf of the $1,000,000 endowment fund which Smith college is trying to raise.

Miss Ritso of Bath, England, who is 101 years of age, states that she was christened in the robe worn by George III. at his christening. That monarch and Miss Ritso's grandfather were playmates, and Queen Charlotte gave the robe to the Ritso family.

Beginning as a girl of five years, Mrs. James, a London woman, has accumulated a fortune through the sale of watercress. She started with a basket and now has practically a monopoly of the trade in the city. She owns a watercress farm, a country house, keeps a river motor launch and has a house in Kensington.

Flippant Flings.

A Chicago professor announces that the human race will soon be toothless. Advice to young men: Don't study dentistry. Go into the breakfast food business.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

"I see the government wants the new bills to look valuable. In short, they want a design in keeping." "I would suggest a dressed turkey in the center, with a border of lamb chops."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

A Connecticut man has invented a "gastograph," which produces on the palate the sensation of eating and drinking without the actual presence of food or drink. The boarding house keepers beat him to it years ago.—Washington Post.

Pen, Chisel and Brush.

John S. Sargent is to be president of the art section at the Anglo-American exposition in England next year.

Harry A. Frank, the author, spent five months in the canal zone as census taker and plain clothes policeman.

Sir George Frampton, R. A., president of the Royal Society of British Sculptors, has accepted the commission for the journalists' memorial to W. T. Stead.

Albert Jaegers, whose model for the monument to be erected at Germantown, Pa., in commemoration of the founding of the German settlement in 1638, was approved by Secretary of War Stimson, is self taught in art. He is a native of Elberfeld, Germany, and was educated in the public schools of Germany and the United States.

Current Comment.

The greatest guaranty that no nation will try to build a canal in Nicaragua is the expense account of the one we are just finishing in Panama.—Washington Post.

Colonel Gorgas, who made the canal zone healthy, will cleanse Ecuador. This is precisely the sort of revolution that those South and Central American republics need.—Philadelphia Ledger.

It is proposed to spend $20,000,000 to get New York's sewage safely out to sea. Paris and Berlin utilize their sewage and get money out of it. That New York cannot do this is one more instance of the disadvantages of its geographical situation and surroundings.—New York World.

Education Notes.

Baltimore has decided to name its public schools after nationally great men.

Cincinnati has tried compulsory vocational training and is well satisfied with the result.

"The greatest waste in education is not bad teaching," said a speaker at the recent meeting of school superintendents, "but teaching things the twentieth century does not need."

High school enrollment in South Carolina has risen from 4,812 to 8,902 in the past six years, and the amount paid for salaries of high school teachers has more than doubled in the same period.

Wireless Whispers.

Bolivia, Chile and Argentina have a mutual wireless system.

An unspliable accumulation for the wireless apparatus used on aeroplanes has recently been invented.

On vessels having but one wireless operator it will be necessary hereafter to train a member of the crew to act as a relief to attend the instrument for ten minutes during each hour to detect any distress signals.

State Lines.

California in 1912 produced 87,000,000 barrels of oil.

Georgia produces more tobacco than any other state in the Union, with an output of 343,980,000 pounds, valued at $29,020,000. Virginia ranks second and North Carolina third.

One-third of the states have no laws regulating the construction of public schoolhouses. Ohio alone has complete legal regulations of schoolhouse construction to insure the safety and sanitation of these buildings.

WIGHTIEST OF WARSHIPS.

The Pennsylvania Will Be the Greatest of All the Dreadnoughts.

As designed the new United States battleship Pennsylvania ranks as the most powerful Dreadnought built, building or authorized by any of the great naval powers. Her principal dimensions are: Length over all, 695 feet; beam, 97 feet, and draft, 29 feet, on a displacement of 21,000 tons on trial, which is but two-thirds of her full load displacement of 32,500 tons.

The Pennsylvania's armament consists of twelve fourteen-inch guns mounted in four turrets on the center line of the ship. With three guns in each turret, there is a fore and aft fire of six guns and a broadside fire of the whole battery. There is a torpedo defense battery of twenty-two five-inch guns, which are carried mostly on the main deck about twenty-two feet above the water line. In addition there are four submerged twenty-one inch torpedo tubes and numerous machine and quick fire guns.

The armor consists of a main belt eighteen feet deep and fourteen inches thick, extending below the water line, with transverse bulkheads athwartship at either end of the belt. The barbettes armor is fourteen inches in thickness, and the sloping port plates of the turrets are eighteen inches thick, with a roof of five inch armor plate.

The speed of the ship is to be a trifle greater than that of her predecessors, or about twenty-one knots. Another important feature is the larger fuel supply, with its resultant increase in radius of action.

The building of this ship will occupy three years. The cost of the hull, machinery and equipment will be $7,200,000 and that of the armament $3,000,000 more. To these two figures, making a total of over $10,000,000, must eventually be added the cost of the guns, which will approximate $1,000,000, thus making the total cost of the vessel over $11,000,000.—New York Sun.

AN ARTIST IN HAIR.

Remarkable Portraits Produced by a German Genius.

Portraits made out of single hairs, each hair being some thirty inches long, can be seen now in the establishment of L. P. Federmeyer in Germany. His work is considered as really the most remarkable of its kind in the world, and he is becoming known as a genius in his profession.

On the walls of his establishment may be seen hanging mottoes and designs and higher up large bust portraits of world famed men. You glance at them as you would glance at any picture on entering a home, but when you are told that these pictures were made entirely of human hairs without a single line of paint, crayon or pencil you are half inclined to doubt the veracity of the proprietor. When he produces a magnifying glass and you see hair, some of it chopped almost to powder, your doubts are satisfied.

There are pictures of Victor Hugo, Gambetta, the French statesman, and Napoleon I. There is one picture of a group of cabinet ministers. The remarkable thing about it is that each of the seven portraits comprising the cabinet is made up of a single hair not longer than thirty inches.—Chicago Tribune.

Poincare's Secret.

When the new president of France made his first visit to the St. Antoine hospital he learned that the 308 patients who had been treated last year in the alcoholic ward had 688 children and that of these 359 had died as infants and small children. Turning to the newspaper men who made the tour with him, President Poincare said, "Gentlemen, give that note of warning the widest publicity."

In the laryngological department the president, said, "Dr. Lermoyez, do you remember how you cured me a few years ago?" The doctor smiled, but made no answer, and the president said: "I suppose I must tell the secret. Your chief treated me successfully when at the tender age of forty-eight I had whooping cough."—New York Tribune.

Polyglot Policemen.

Berlin has decided to follow the example of Dresden and Leipzig and is stationing polyglot policemen at the chief street corners of the center. Twelve of the most promising linguists on the Berlin police staff have already mastered the English tongue. They are to be stationed on Unter den Linden, Friedrichstrasse, Leipzigerstrasse and Wilhelmstrasse. As a mark of recognition each carries on the left arm a badge with two crossed flags, the English and the American. Should the experiment prove successful it is to be extended to other languages.

An Aerial Record.

It is reported that a sounding balloon sent up from the observatory of Paravia, the headquarters of upper air research in Italy, attained the unprecedented altitude of 23.4 miles. The previous record, 20.15 miles, was made at the royal observatory of Belgium June 9, 1911. The American record, 18.04 miles, was made at Huron, S. D., September, 1910.—Chicago News.

Boston's Menster Drydock.

Boston has appropriated $3,000,000 for the construction of a dry dock capable of taking the largest ocean liners. New York lacks such facilities. If the Titanic had been able to crawl to New York harbor after encountering the iceberg she would have had to remain there indefinitely, for there is not a dock in the country that would have accommodated her.

Woman's World

She Will Be Much In Evidence at White House.

MRS. JOSEPH HOWE.

One of the many beautiful and accomplished women who will help Mrs. Wilson and her charming daughters dispense hospitality at the White House is Mrs. Joseph Howe, wife of President Wilson's favorite nephew.

The Howes have been residents at the capital during the past winter, and Mrs. Howe has made hosts of friends. Before her marriage she was a famous belle of the Old Dominion, a state noted for its gracious and witty women.

WHY THEY SAY "NO."

Proposals of Marriage That Are Not Snapped Up.

Why do women so often say "No" to a proposal of marriage when they really mean to accept it?

Some married women were asked recently this delicate question: "Why is it that a woman never seems to give a man a definite reply to the question, 'Will you marry me?' until he has been kept waiting?"

This provocative trait in woman's character has been a novelist's theme for years, but no one has offered a definite explanation.

Six married women confessed the other day that not one of them said "Yes" to the first offer of marriage.

One said she was a nurse before marriage, and her husband was her patient when he proposed.

"He must have asked me ten times to marry him before I finally accepted. Why? Well, one reason was that I wanted to make quite certain that he really loved me and that his affection was not merely a sick man's gratitude or simply due to the fact that I was the only girl he had seen for some weeks.

"Of course from the first I knew I would marry him, but I forced myself to make certain that he was in earnest."

The second wife said she had only recently been married. "I said 'No' to my husband twice," she said, "and I was acquitted, I think, by a sort of foolish pride.

"I was twenty-one years old at the time, and I knew practically no men until the man who was afterward my husband came to stay with my parents, and I fell in love with him immediately—before he did with me, I believe.

"He was financially 'well off,' and I happened to hear that some people were saying I was 'setting my cap' at him. I think that was why I refused him at first."

An authoress gave an interesting opinion. "Men really don't appreciate how much a proposal means to a girl," she said, "for, after all, the saying that love is only a part of a man's life, but of woman's the whole, is perfectly true.

"I know that if a girl were to propose and be rejected she would not get over it half so easily as the man would if he had been refused.

"The majority of girls say 'No' at first because they are overwhelmed with joy at such an offer."

Crystal Calla Lilies.

The vogue of crystal is responsible for a very lovely type of flower holder. To a base of silver which may be set on the center or the sides of a dining table or on any vacant space in a living or bed room are affixed two crystal calla lilies of natural size which spread from the foundation in opposite directions. The lily cups are deep enough to hold water for roses and other medium sized flowers, and through the transparent crystal the stems of the exotics produce a charming effect. Crystal callas also come in clusters of twelve, the first six attached near the base of a slender standard, the next four halfway up and the final two at the apex. These lilies, filled with orchids, are a fascinating decoration for a drawing room, and it is a combination in colors that goes well with any tone scheme.

She's Never Late.

There was a young lady named Knox. Whose promissaries gave every one shock. When asked by a mate Why she never was late, replied, "I wear clock on my nose."

AUTOMOBILES

With the advent of 1913 many new cars are noted on the Canadian markets. Both new and old show many refinements and improvements over 1912.

McLAUGHLIN-BUICK builders have made good their claim to a country built car.

A car built for our none-to-good Canadian roads.

A car fitted with all the latest improvements.

The prices are moderate. Careful comparison is invited with the higher priced cars and especially with cheap cars whose makers base their extravagant claims of present worth on what their cars have not, instead of what they have.

We also have some excellent values in rebuilt cars repainted and overhauled.

A Great Football Game Last Friday Evening

England Beats The Canny Scots
With a Score of 3 to 1

An interesting football match was played off on Friday last at the Agricultural grounds. It was International in character to decide the supremacy between English and Scots but owing to the difficulty in getting a sufficient line up, the teams had representatives of Ireland and at least one French-Canadian.

Whether the match was insufficiently advertised or lack of interest was the cause, the spectators could be numbered on the fingers of both hands. This was hardly encouraging to the boys but they made up their minds to go ahead and give as good a game as if there were thousands watching.

From the outset it was seen the Scots, who had greater difficulty in getting a team, were outclassed, and the play for the greater part of the game was in the Scottish half. Still they held on bravely and the final score was a fair indication of the game. England 3, Scotland 1.

England's goals were scored by Lee, Woodland and Laurie (Scot) who had the unhappy luck or ill-luck to score against his own side. Scotland's only goal was scored by Cameron. The game from beginning to finish was a good natured contest, free from all rough play or unpleasantness, and worthy of more encouragement and support from the townspeople.

The Alberta Department of Education writes the Call that Departmental Examinations for grades 8, 9 and 10 will be held in Gleichen from June 23rd to June 30th. This will give the children in Gleichen and surrounding country a splendid opportunity.

Gleichen will be well represented by exhibitors at the Calgary exhibition in July and among the largest entries will be the Clydes and heavy teams which will be shown by C. E. Clark, of Crowfoot who who has in about a dozen entries. From the class of live stock and grain which this part of the province produces Gleichen should be well represented in the prize list when the final awards are made.

It. Mace was in town on Monday and states that he looks for another bumper crop this year, especially if the present fine weather and occasional rain showers continue along the Arrowood.

Mr. and Mrs. Padley returned on Saturday from a trip of several months through the eastern and western States and report that they were pleased to once more reach Gleichen. Although they have not yet decided just where they will permanently locate they intend to remain in town for some time. Their many friends here are pleased to see them once more looking better for their extended absence.

The Sixth Annual Exhibition of Horticultural Society will be held in the Horse show building, Calgary, Wednesday and Thursday, August 13th and 14th. The society is anxious to get exhibits from out of town, of all classes of home grown products, flowers and vegetables. With the aim to secure as many exhibits as possible, the Society is prepared to pay the freight on exhibits and properly stage them on arrival here, this will save the expense and trouble of the exhibitor attending in person. The same care will be given small exhibits as large ones. Any further information can be had from the chairman of the committee, H. E. Lambert.

At noon Sunday a fire alarm once more showed our fire brigade is very much alive and in quick time the boys connected with the hydrant opposite the Palace Hotel, but just as the water was being turned on found that it was unnecessary. A small fire started by the explosion of a gasoline stove in the kitchen was extinguished before much damage was done, although for a time it was feared it was burning through a partition.
